Twenty-Second Sunday in Ordinary Time

You are thinking not as God does, but as human beings do. (Matthew 16:23)

Can you imagine being in Peter’s position? Jesus just called you the rock on which he would build his church, and then, seconds later, he is chastising you and calling you “Satan.” What happened?

What we are seeing here is the real-time working of the Holy Spirit. Through Jesus’ teaching, Peter was laying new foundations for the way he would think and act-but those foundations took time to build. And today’s reading shows him at a point when he grasped that Jesus was the promised Messiah, but not that this Messiah was destined to be a suffering servant.

How hard it must have been for Peter to hear Jesus speak so abruptly! But ultimately, how freeing it proved to be! Peter didn’t have to remain thinking only as an ordinary human being, with just a few flashes of revelation here and there. This encounter showed him that he learned to think with God all the time. It showed that he could always ask the Holy Spirit for wisdom—and that the Spirit would answer him.

Ultimately, Peter was able to preach the gospel, heal the sick, and lead the church because he let his mind be renewed. He learned how to hear God’s voice and receive direction from God, and that enabled him to remain strong and peaceful in times of tribulation. He wasn’t doing it all on his own; he had divine help to guide him and reassure him every step of the way.

Peter is a wonderful example of what the Holy Spirit can do when we let him work in us. Sometimes it is hard to submit our thoughts and attitudes to the Lord, but the rewards are well worth the effort. After all, what could be better than being transformed into a beloved-and loving-servant of Christ!

“Holy Spirit, come and renew my way of thinking. I want to become a vessel of your grace and power, and I know I cannot do this on my own. Spirit, make your thoughts and your desires my desires!” © Aug 2011, The Word Among Us
